We’ve said it before, and we’ll say it again: Our work would not be possible without generous and consistent support from enthusiastic individuals who jump right into taking action. You found ways to come together despite a world of challenges. When we learned that the Ipswich River was ranked one of the 10 Most Endangered Rivers® in America, you rose to the occasion—as quickly as this year’s uncommonly high water level.

The river called, and you answered.

Paddle-a-thon participants biked, walked, kayaked, and more to raise awareness of their endangered river. Over thirty local businesses and companies, led by 2021 River Heroes New England Biolabs and Institution for Savings, showed their support as Paddle-a-thon sponsors. Together, sponsors and teams raised more than $100,000 for the Ipswich River—a record-setting effort!

River advocates called their legislators and sent comment letters to encourage better statewide water management and common sense water restrictions more in keeping with the realities of the climate crisis. Volunteers made everything possible, from improved data collection, restoration progress, and badly needed in-person events. In support of an ambitious 2021-2023 Strategic Plan, donors increased their giving, making the 2021 year-end appeal the most successful ever.

Whether increasing community resilience, getting more people outside, or supporting relevant, accessible environmental education, you’ve shown your deep dedication to our mission. Thank you!

Above: SKW&CO employees and dogs enjoyed gathering on the river after supporting clean water and Team Reading Ripples.

As a lifelong angler and conservationist, I have always held the values of watershed management close to my heart. My early days on the Blackledge River in CT and the Connecticut River in NH were precious for times with my family and for the peace the water gave me. Later years were enriched with canoe trips across parts of eastern Canada, exposing me to the Cree and Inuit cultures.

I came to the picturesque coastal community of Ipswich in 2006 and soon after became an Ipswich River Watershed Association member. While serving as the Ipswich Fire Chief, I took great pleasure and peace in counting herring for IRWA. When I learned that water allocations exceeded the supply, I felt compelled to do more and joined IRWA’s Board. I am also a member of Rotary International, whose motto is “Service Above Self.” With this motto resonating through me, I thought, how can I translate it to my work with IRWA? Despite its small size, IRWA has successfully advocated locally and regionally for effective watershed management. With increased support, I believe that solutions to the river’s woes are within reach.

Concurrently, I was updating my will and saw an opportunity to both serve others in need and demonstrate for my children a sense of philanthropy towards causes near and dear to my heart. I was so pleased to include IRWA and Rotary in my revised will. Adding a legacy gift is nowhere near as complex as you might think. You name the percentage or exact amount, no one else. You are in control. I feel grateful to share a small part of my assets with IRWA upon my death and know that this small but mighty organization will be wise stewards of my dollars.

~Art Howe

Already included IRWA in your estate plan? Let us know. Doing so will allow us to appropriately thank you for your gift and keep you updated on our work.
Every friend of the river is special to us. Thank you.

Scenes from source to sea.

The North Shore of Massachusetts is filled with iconic areas of natural beauty including the Great Marsh and the Ipswich River. Like many places across the world, these local treasures are facing uncertain futures. The Flowing River Art Show is organized by the Ipswich River Watershed Association to celebrate local artists and highlight the wetlands, rivers, streams, wildlife, and clean water that make this region so special. A portion of the sales from the show will be donated by the artists to protect the health and beauty of the Ipswich River. Thank you to all the many talented artists participating in the show, and to our show partner, Cell Signaling Technology, for making this incredible event possible. You can see examples from the show in our Annual Report, and view the entire gallery at ipswichriver.org/artshow22.
